ABSRUD EDITORIAL

I can remember the night it all started. The wind howled, lightning flashed and thunder railed & Young Boy stood in the shadows, waiting. The dark tower of the building opposite seemed to beckon his from his hideous place. He cast a furtive glance left, right, this was it, the moment. Heart throbbing he ran, dodged the rain, across the street and in, into the building. Seeking the rain from his head he peered through the bottom of his steamed-up glasses and screamed "One and six please", "Are you sixteen?", the woman behind the till inspected a slight case of scales into the question, "You don't look sixteen." Starting to panic he felt rather than saw a movement behind him, he half turned. "Let him be Mary, it's only a horror." Salvation! He grasped the proffered ticket and stumbled into the darkness. He sat down, just in time, the curtains opened "THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT "THE BRIDES OF DRACULA" HAS BEEN PASSED "X" CERTIFICATE, FOR EXHIBITION WHEN NO CHILD UNDER SIXTEEN IS PRESENT."

That dark, stormy night was early 1964, my first 'Adults Only' Double-Bill I could really have started in better company, Hammer's "Dracula" & "Brides of Dracula."

• ANOTHER PANGLOSS •

"If, what you would find in 'ABSRUD' is:

- a) The cynicism of Stefan Jaworsky in "SPOOK EXPRESS."
 - b) The superb layout, writing & art of "SAMHAIN"
 - c) The straight word perfect cries from Video ears of "**."
 - d) The foul language that soils the otherwise superb "DEEP RED."
 - e) The quality appearance (and paper) of "WHIPLASH SHILL."
 - f) The sheer volume of information in Paul Hippen's "BLACKEN'S DOGIST."
- Well, I hope, you will find it—

- a) & genuine love of sleazy, low budget, Horror films.
- b) obscure films & actors, it'd much rather discover a no-budget dog like "MOMMIE!", then sit through another big-budget bore like "GOTHIC" or "ARKIN."

Ad-Mem: I've got some fairly rare stuff to share with you, see the 'Mexican Wrestling' article in this issue to see the sort of stuff I mean.

d) Credit! I've got a million of 'em, so if you like to know who played which part in what film, then stick with us.

- e) Frequent articles on pro-gore films, articles on people like George Spahn, John Ashley, Lionel Atwill, Hamilton Knaggs (who he?), etc.

"> A page every issue on either Karloff or Lugosi.

Make no mistake for my choice of material, I don't mind some of today's gore-filled nonsense, but I feel the older films are in danger of being forgotten, away from "FILMFARE", there's very little coverage of them, it does small part I hope to rectify that lack.

To give you some idea of where my loyalties lie, I promise not to waffle on like this in every issue, among my favorites are:

"FIRE—"Blood of the Vampire", "The Comedy of Terrors", "Curse of Terrors", "The Rocky Horror Picture Show", "Frankenstein", "Peeping Tom", "Wreck of the Vampire", "The Man Who Could Cheat Death", "Blackest Case", "Murder By Decree", "Evil Dead", "Beyond the Grave" (perfect) "Filmfare", "Scream", "Deep Red".

ACTION: Boris Karloff, Cameron Mitchell, Peter Cushing, John Carradine

ACTRESS: Sybil Denning, Barbara Shelley, Melaine Smith (where are you now?)

ABSRUD will be published whenever I find the time to do another issue.

The address for all criticism, requests, correspondence, corrections and enquiries is:

Lee Cannon, 13 Union Road, Harstead, Rushdale, Lancs. OL13 9QA.

Should anyone wish to send articles, artwork etc, please feel free, all such items accepted will earn the contributor a free issue!

Now, if you'll just bear with me for one last place I'd like to dedicate this first issue of Absrud to the man who, after my parents, has had the biggest effect on my life. To Mr Forrest J. Ackerman, thanks for opening the way.

NIGHTMARE.

PART OF A
MORE OBSCURE NAMES 'B.

When Janet was sixteen, she saw her father with her mother in front of a school, and saw such violent arguments that she is most sure, according to a teacher Mary Lane before Mary Janet she is told by Jane one of the servants, about Janet's traumatic experiences, and how Janet has always feared for her own safety, scared she was and up like her father-in-law, as a nurse, Janet's guardian, had employed Grace to look after her. At night Janet sees the figure of a woman in her bedroom, when Janet follows the "apparition" she finds her casket, later on her father's bed, Grace claims her fears

Most morning Janet is introduced to Henry's wife, is one of the film's most atmospheric shots, the camera zooms in slowly as the wife turns to face Janet-it is the "ghost" that has been haunting her. Janet's mind reels and she tells the woman to teach Janet to rent to a home, and Henry and Grace arrive and take over the house. This is what they have been planning all along of course Grace wearing a mask to look like the wife. Their idyllic existence is a short-lived one, now it's Grace's turn to suffer violence at night, & she begins to doubt Henry's faithfulness. Eventually driven to seek Henry, Grace finds the plot has now turned full circle and now she is the victim of the servants, who are in collusion with Janet's teacher, Terry Janet, of course, is now on the way to making a complete recovery.

By the time this was made Sengster could write "Psycho" like scripts in his sleep ,it shows. Apart from the old 100-watt candle touch,"Nightmare" glides along quite nicely thank you,until the mid way stage when the weak plot lack of having the two baddies marry and live in their victim's house-as they can conveniently be heard plotting by the local servants-spells the movie atmosphere. It's a repetitive film,ent,like literally scores of other film made in the same period,has it's heroine wandering through dark corridors,seeing ghostly voices and disappearing corpses all in all a typical 'second feature' of the sixties,or acceptable support for 'Evil of Frankenstein'

MEXICAN WRESTLING HORRORS
PART ONE: "SANTO"

After an abortive early attempt at screen fame in 1952 in "SANTO EN EL ENGAÑADO DE PLATA", Santo had to wait another nine years before his film career took off. The first of the many "Santo Fights Monsters" was "SANTO CONTRA LAS MUJERES VAMPIROS" (1961), in which the ground rules for the series were laid down for the next twelve years, Santo would fight virtually every kind of fiend imaginable, and a few fresh other places in this one. The Vampire Women of the title & their suicide-bomb teachers, in between singing the Transylvanian National Anthem, are searching for a new Queen, who must be a descendant of their original Queen, down to the male on the shoulder. Director Alfonso Corona Blake, must have been brought up on the Republic Serials of the thirties & forties. The title was changed in the USA to "Santo vs the Vampire Women", presumably to cash in on the popularity of the Italian Ecstasy/Berkeley/Savage films, which reached their peak during this period (Though one wonders why the French called it "Superman Contre Les Femmes Vampires", see poster above). Also in 1961 Santo starred directed "SANTO CONTRA LAS TORRENTES", released in the USA as "Invasion of the Zombies". Our intrepid hero fights a mad scientist (the first of many) and his army of Zombies (!) think the Horror Film Encyclopedia is mistaken in calling this "Santo Contra las Bestias", a title which was used in part later on in the series ("Santo V Blue Demon Contra las Monstruos"). Alfonso Corona Blake's second entry in the series was started in 1961, though not released till the following year "SANTO EN EL MUNDO DE LOS MUERTOS", featured a werewolf, the Phantom, a werewolf and the Frankenstein Monster as exhibits in the Wax Museum of the leery Doctor Karol. Of course all the monsters come to life and are re-embodied by Santo at the film's climax.

1962 introduced Santo's laboratory & his enemy to the Metastable, in "SANTO EN EL HOTEL DE LA MUERTE", which also featured a Jack the Ripper type striking the hotel corridors. The same year a mad Frankenstein-type Doctor featured in "SANTO CONTRA EL COMENDADOR DIABOLICO", the scientist's assistant kill him at the film's end in true Universal/Besser style. "SANTO CONTRA EL REY DE LOS GIGANTES", again in 1962, was more a gaudy thriller than the Science-Fiction mentioned in Walt Lee's Reference Guide, a natural development the following year, after Werewolves, Zombies, the Frankenstein monster and assorted Vampires, what better than the Phantom of the Opera in not one, but two features-possibly made back to back "SANTO CONTRA EL ESTRANULADOR" & "INSPECTOR DEL ESTRANULADOR". 1964 started with "SANTO ATACA LAS BRUJAS", Santo fights the reincarnation of a witch who conjures up a variety of monsters to battle him, including snakes and a large spider. Also made the same year was "EL SACERDOTE DIABOLICO", which featured a wicked priest from the days of is accomplished, attacking people with, what also "is an acronym, and Only Santo's reputation of good, scourge of evil", can stop him. This also features according to available's Mexican Press/Writer, the "scriptured weekly" of Lorena Velazquez was back to the vampire next in "EL SAKON BRABOLA" (1944) another Dracula job alike. The worker, reproduced opposite, takes his look even more like Lugosi, has lugosi did himself. "LOS PROFANADORES DE TOMBAS" in 1944 featured "Lobo Negro" a his third vampire film along with the familiar Grave Robbers. The same year saw two non-fantasy Santo films! Any of these can be clipped as "read-then-study"! "SANTO CONTRA LOS AGUSTINOS MARATE" & "SANTO CONTRA LOS WILKIN OS DEL RING" following in the old Universal tradition of if they'll come to watch one monster, they'll really love four or five! In this case for monster read Wrestling, & you have the first of the 'Mighty Wrestler' films, "LA INVASION DE LOS GUARDIANES" (1944), and he is set on invasion of boxers. (think bout it) Not Martians as well as Santo this featured Wolf Brunstein's "Frankenstein". "El Ring" and even a episode of Mexico's Fauna wrestled 1944 brought Santo into conflict with Blue Demon in what has been reported as their first film to deliver, "SANTO CONTRA BLUE DEMON EN LA ATLANTIDA" (Mexico had guested in a 1944 film "BLUE DEMON CONTRA EL AGUERO DE PANICO", about which, were more recent) The story in "It was well padded out with attack scenes from the Japanese "MONSTER ZERO" & etc., discovered the secret of ever-rising growth and plans to rule the Earth from Atlantis. He controls "Blue Demon's and for a while, and vice versa against Santo. The same year a "SANTO Y BLUE DEMON CONTRA LOS MONSTRUOS" shows all manner of monsters, Tarpans, Cyclops, Cyclops, Hump, Frankenstein, Zombies, Werewolves, even a "This Island Earth" mutant. Look-alike Ali are revived by the statutory and scientist who has, himself, been brought back to life! An evil duplicate of Blue Demon wrestles Santo for a while. Santo wrestles a Vampire in the ring, Frankenstein's aboarded! Monster drives a car, Santo and Blue Demon join forces and defeat all the monsters. The same year "SANTO Y BLUE DEMON EN EL MUNDO DE LOS MONSTRUOS" pulled out two heroes against a witch. Santo also made a couple of films without Blee Dessen in 1942, "EL ENIGMA DE MONTEZUMA" & "SANTO Y EL TESORO DE DRACULA" (aka "EL VAMPIRO Y EL SEXO"). The Dracula film featured yet another "Count Alucard" (these assassins get more and more barbaric!) Santo is back in his Batcarnivorous laboratory, sending a scientist's daughter back in time to find where Dracula stashed his treasure, back in the present. His loyal Maria boss arranges a wrestling bout between his son and Santo. Santo wins, and Dracula, who has been revived once in the film, dies again, by the fangs of the son. Another once full of female vampires featured next year (1943), in "LA VENGANZA DE LAS MUJERES VAMPIROS". Doctor Brasseur revives the vampire Countess Morra, and then assists her in her fight for revenge against Santo, whose ancestor had snaked her, centuries before two more sequels in 1949 pitted Santo against Lepara & Dead-Batman, in

"SANTO CONTRA LOS ESPERANZOS DE CARACAS" & "SANTO CONTRA LOS TIENTES DEL INFIERNO" 1970, and Blue Demon joined in again, this time in "SANTO Y BLUE DEMON CONTRA EL DOCTOR FRANKENSTEIN" (1971) through Santo has widest range of villains to date. In "SANTO CONTRA CAPTIVA" the speedster Devilina is turned into a villain by yet another and scientist with a mind-control machine "ASOMBRON DE OTROS MUNDOS", now we have Terrestrial invasion and the obligatory mad scientist
 "SANTO Y EL AGUILA REAL". Santo fights a wrestler called "Royal Eagle" "MISION SUICIDA", & and Doctor Franken takes a change from mad scientist (gives a villain Santo) face, via plastic surgery The Aster Mummy which turns out to be a fake (turned up in two films, "SANTO CONTRA LA MAFIA AZTECA" & "LA VENGANZA DE LA MORTA", was he the only time in films, Mexican or otherwise, in which the Mummy offs it's victims with a bow and arrow "MISION SUICIDA DE LA CARNE" is sent a little I'm afraid, I know little else about it. "SANTO CONTRA LA MAFIA DEL Vicio", just a Santo y Mafia outing, Santo kills Frankenstein's Monster ("Ureus") at the start of "SANTO CONTRA LA NIJA DE FRANKENSTEIN" Frankenstein's daughter keeps herself young with blood taken from young virgins (is "COUNTESS DRACULA" I Usable to keep on the supply, at the film's climax, she crumbles and ages 1972, and we come into Santo's last year in film (and, of course, you know different) "SANTO MUERE A LA MUJER", well he faced death in every film he appeared in! "LAS MONIAS DE GUANAJUATO", brought back Blue Demon, and another well-loved man of Mexico 'Mila Mascara' SANTO CON-TRA LA MAFIA NOIRA", featured Zombies once again, and a great big opponent who could change into a tiger "SANTO Y BLUE DEMON CONTRA DRACULA Y EL MONSTRU LONGO", our heroes fight hordes of Mefesoids & vampires, in "BESTIAS DEL INFIERNO" another (he real) mad scientist brings the dead back to life, Santo & Blue Demon race up to defeat them The final Santo title I have any information of is "SANTO CONTRA EL DOCTOR MUERTO", a co production with Spain, with release of "COLOM ME BLOOD RED", I-like and painter Car, by now, his friend Santo appears to have stopped filmmaking with long periods. (he say will be coming through

I'm not as clever as Phil Hardy, I'm not sure who played Santo in any particular film, so I rely on Phil ' In compiling this filmography I've used Matt Lee's and Phil Hardy's volumes, along with various press-books as far as info goes, well I think I managed to iron out most of them.

 they really mean is that Karloff's scenes were shot in three days, the rest of the film was completed during the next three months. "THEIC TERROR4304"

SYNOPSIS:

Andre Drexler, an officer in Haggness's army, is separated from his regiment. He collapses on the seashore, and when he awakens he sees a beautiful girl, Helene, who then disappears into the sea. When Andre tries to follow her he is attacked by a vicious hawk. He wakes up in a witch's hut, the witch tells him that Helene is to be found at the Castle of Baron Van Leppes. Andre, of course, goes to the castle, where the Baron, grudgingly, allows him to enter. He sees a picture of the mysterious Helene, but the Baron says it is a portrait of his wife line who he killed twenty years previously, because she was unfaithful to him with Erik, the witch's son (still with me!! Andre sees Helene again, and she promises to go away with him, but then she disappears again. The witch confesses that she has been using the girl to bait Van Leppes, in revenge for the death of her son, Erik Van Leppes's servant tells Andre that Baron Van Leppes is really Erik, it was the Baron who died twenty years ago, and the insane Erik has taken his place (what?) at the end (the only really watchable bit) the witch is struck by lightning, Erik draws in the crypt. Andre rescues the girl, but she turns into an aged corpse in his arms. (THE END)

I've never liked Jack Nicholson as an actor, he only plays one character in every film. Jack Nicholson, in this though, he hasn't even developed his own character, and is simply wooden, a candidate for the non-actor award of any year not just in Boris though - is a different proposition, even in this shoddy little film he still does errors as what he was, a great actor. He was never given any credit by the "mainstream" cinema while alive, in fact, I don't think he even realized himself, not how good an actor he could be. O.K. perhaps not in this, but as an example, see "TARZAN" ("The Terror" in the film playing as the driver in on that film's) - I don't see a great actor at work.

"The lightning flashed, the waves crashed violently on the rugged rocks beneath... and from the sea, under its dark and dread mantle of the deeper green, the hidden beast, summoned to the crypt following a trail of blood..."

And in we are introduced to "The Terror" (Boris Karloff) and a most traditional setting for a horror film cannot be imagined.

But, against where are all the impressive landscapes, the black towers, the wicked wizardry - instead of cheap shocks we have a first-class suspense, a suspense, a perfect building up of interest, a mystery that goes dramatically deeper and deeper.

Who is the man behind beauty with the terrifyingly low cut points who almost seems the daring young soldier to his doom? What motivation has led to his being kept in his dark thin dress of grief?

Slowly but surely, the film grows in curiosity, suspense, like a great sea, like the great rain, like a war, like a great, like the end of the line of Karloff.

It's a great achievement and what Karloff's scenes lead to what they did mean to him, how struggling to get through his mental lock - F.I.

A.P. never exactly reticent in their publicity blarney went completely over the top with this one, "Dreadful Frankenstein... House of Wax... The Pit & The Pendulum NOW! a new classic of horror comes to the screen!" And of course "We are well be admitted while the ruffian scolding ahead", later on Video the film became "From the depths of an evil mind, a diabolic plan of revenge" which is only slightly closer to the truth.

Retitled as now defunct, Apple Video, "The Night of Terror" for an American release.
